

Hopes Brighten As President, Sadat End Talks

SALZBURG, Austria (UPI) — President Ford completed friendly Middle East policy talks with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat today and said a U.S. plan to promote "permanent peace" is taking shape.

Mutual goodwill blossomed at the conclusion of a two-day meeting that seemed to brighten prospects for Arab-Israeli peace negotiations and put the United States back in a central mediating role.

Ford told Sadat he was ready to resume U.S. economic aid to Egypt and said the two nations had "strengthened our friendship dramatically" in the past 18 months.

Sadat, for his part, could not seem to say enough for Ford, whom he described to reporters as "an honest and straightforward man" and a fighter for peace. He invited Ford to visit Cairo.

(In Jerusalem, the Israeli cabinet lent impact to the Ford-Sadat meeting by announcing suddenly it would reduce Israel's forces on the Egyptian Sinai front by more than half in a goodwill gesture for peace.)

(Premier Yitzhak Rabin denied the concession was timed to coincide with the Salzburg meeting. He described it as an Israeli response to Egypt's decision to reopen the Suez Canal this Thursday.)

Completing their final round of talks in a medieval Alpine palace, Ford and Sadat walked out into a rainswept courtyard and stood shoulder to shoulder in a circle of bodyguards to brief reporters.

"My reassessment (of U.S. Middle East policy) will be completed with a plan that I will submit at the appropriate time," Ford said.

"In the weeks ahead, I will have further consultations that I trust will lead to the overall objective I seek of a permanent peace that will be in the best interests of all the parties."

Ford referred to his scheduled meeting with Rabin in Washington June 11 and 12, a consultation designed to follow up the meeting with Sadat and produce the information Ford needs to produce a revised U.S. Middle East plan.

Some diplomats in Salzburg said the Ford-Sadat talks may have paved the way for a resumption of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's "shuttle diplomacy" between Israel and the Arab states, which broke down in stalemate two months ago and led to the U.S. policy "reassessment."

But Ford and Sadat declined to discuss specifics. Ford said "we have not made any decision" on the exact nature of the next step.

Sadat offered a word of caution, saying, "the peace process will be a long time..."

"The most important achievement we can make is that we end this state of belligerency (between Israel and the Arab states) that has gone on now for 27 years."

Kissinger's mediations broke down over precisely this point when Israel demanded a formal Egyptian declaration ending Arab belligerency as the price for Israeli withdrawal from key Sinai mountain passes and an occupied Egyptian oil field. The Egyptians refused to give such an assurance.

Sadat and Ford each described their talks in the Residenz Palace — Ford's guest residence — as "extensive" and aides said they had got down to reviewing Middle East maps at various points.

"We had ... a complete survey of the whole situation and have discussed lots of considerations," Sadat said. He pledged to maintain regular contact with Ford as the President pursues his policy review further.

Ford toasted the "dramatic" increase in U.S.-Egyptian friendship and made his promise of economic aid at a farewell luncheon after the news conference.

"I assure you," Ford said, "that the United States is prepared to provide Egypt with current assistance as a basis gress to give reality to this continuing pledge."

In his return toast, Sadat called his meeting with Ford

'An Honest and Straightforward Man' ... Sadat for sound, long-range economic development, both bilaterally and in cooperation with other states and international institutions.

"I will work with our Con-

"delightful and illuminating" and said Ford agreed that the Middle East situation "is explosive and requires urgent action if another outbreak of violence is to be avoided."

The President and Mrs. Ford fly to Rome early Tuesday for a brief stopover on the final leg of a week-long European tour that began with the NATO summit in Brussels and took Ford to four capitals.

The President was to meet with Pope Paul before flying on to the United States late Tuesday. He was due in Washington early Wednesday morning.

There were growing signs that the policy to be agreed here would be a return to this step-by-step diplomacy, with Kissinger once again its guide.

But Egyptian spokesman Jahseen Beshir said Egypt wanted "some concrete effort by Israel" before Kissinger even sets out, "so he won't need too much shuttle next time."

Another possibility was the convening of a Geneva conference grouping all the affected parties — or most of them, if the Palestinians are left out. The United States, with Russia, would be cochairman of that conference.

For the moment at least, Ford overshadowed his diplomatic superstar, Kissinger.

Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco said that, at their first meeting, "the two presidents carried by far the major burden of the talks." The contribution by the others, including Kissinger, "was very limited," he said.

Beshir said Sadat was "quite impressed with the warmth and straight-forwardness of Ford." White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the two presidents, speaking English to each other, "got along well."

FORD TRIPS ON PLANE RAMP
... An Unusual Arrival

HITTING THE DECK
... The President Is Grounded

Ford's Football Knee And His Stumble Into Austria

SALZBURG, Austria (UPI) — President Ford today laughed off his pratfall entrance at Salzburg airport Sunday and said he felt "great" after a good night's sleep.

"Here I was, trying to be a gentleman, holding the umbrella and holding my wife's arm, and look what happens," Ford said with a grin.

"I fell down."

Ford missed a step as he descended from his plane at the airport Sunday, toppled over and lay for a moment at the bottom of the ramp.

Chatting with reporters early today, Ford said he felt "great" after eight hours sleep and his physician, Dr. William Lukash, said the President suffered no bruises or scratches.

The descent from the plane at Salzburg airport Sunday was perhaps the most sensational in presidential history, and a White House aide blamed the fall on a "football knee" which gives the former University of Michigan center trouble when he is tired.

Air Force Col. Robert Blake, a presidential aide, said Ford nearly missed a step later going up a staircase, and then almost tumbled down the same set of stairs after talks with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

"That knee after a long day" acts up, Blake said, "and he kind of favors it. I think his leg is a little tired from (his) being on his feet a long time."

Blake revealed Ford wears a knee brace when he plays golf.

All was going serenely Sunday as First Lady Betty Ford started down the airplane ramp, the President holding a clear plastic umbrella over her to shelter her from a light rain.

But on the third step from the bottom, Ford suddenly lurched forward and bumped down the remaining steps to the red carpet on the tarmac, landing on hands and knees.

He quickly bounced to his feet and told the welcoming crowd of 600: "Thank you for your gracious greeting to Salzburg and I'm sorry I tumbled in."

The fall tore the heel from Ford's right shoe. The heel was found later on the tarmac, and Mrs. Ford noted it bore the word "nonskid."

Ford's physician, Dr. William Lukash, said the President did not suffer any ill effects from the fall.

The two near-falls occurred later when Ford went to the 16th Century Residenz, former home of the prince-archbishops of Salzburg, for talks with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

Going into the building, Blake said, Ford almost missed a step going up the staircase.

Koenig Says It... He'll Seek Fourth Term

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig made it official Sunday night, as expected. He's available for a fourth term as the city's chief executive.

While Koenig's "announcement" might have been something less than the partisan Democratic crowd of over 300 at the Walnut Grove might have expected, the fact that Koenig, who has garnered upwards of 70 percent of the vote each of the three times he's run, was going again was good news to them indeed.

Koenig in a brief address noted that he had been criticized in some quarters for not declaring earlier; Democrats meet in convention at city hall on June 12.

"I wouldn't be so presumptuous," he said, stating that in the Democratic Party "the right to nominate candidates belongs entirely to the people and their duly elected delegates."

He went on to praise the party workers who had helped him in the past and who had helped Gov. Hugh Carey become the first Democrat in 40 years to carry the city of Kingston.

Koenig's running mate, Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo, was even briefer than the mayor in his declaration. "I want to assure you that the team is still alive and that I'm a candidate," he said. Gallo is seeking his fifth term in office.

Guest speaker was State Tax Commissioner James H. Tully. He was introduced by Special City Court Judge George A. Beck who served as master of ceremonies. County Legislator Larry Kithcart was dinner chairman while City Chairman Larry Woerner introduced the candidates.

Beck in introducing Tully, Carey's campaign manager last year, noted that his brother, Martin Tully practices law in New Paltz and that his own wife, the former Eileen Conway, is a native of Kingston.

Tully's speech centered on the fiscal policies of Republicans in Washington which he noted are entering their seventh year of executive power. "In mandating wage and price control programs which allowed escape hatches for those with influence, such as the lumber industry and the coal industry and the banks and others, the Republican Party nearly brought down the whole economy," Tully charged. "They catered to the prejudices of the middle class, or what they hoped were the prejudices of the middle class."

Tully contended the Democratic landslide of last year was a "return to the party of the people."

"We provided the governments that attended to economic needs, governments that were strong when strength was needed, compassionate when times were difficult and decisive when called into the face of chaos."

Concluding Tully declared, "I hope you continue the good work of bringing into the Democratic fold those who have been betrayed and those who have been misled. You do not offer your fellow citizens the philosophy of smug indifference to the needs of others, the old saying 'I got mine, too bad for you.' But the party that has as its philosophy the very basic fact that we are all brothers and sisters, the knowledge that we will be judged by our contemporaries and by our God on how we served our fellow man."

"There are things that have been done that are in contradiction to the statutes, but in comparison to the total effort (of the CIA), they are not major."

'CIA Broke Law' . . . Rocky

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller said today the Central Intelligence Agency has broken the law but added the spy agency is not guilty of large-scale illegal activity.

Summing up the five month Rockefeller Commission investigation of the CIA, the vice president told newsmen:

Ex-Agent links Mafia to CIA. Story on Page 18.

The commission held its last meeting to put finishing touches on a 350-page report that will be sent to President Ford on Friday.

Rockefeller said the eight-member blue ribbon panel named by Ford in January to probe the CIA was nearly unanimous in its conclusions about the spy agency.

"Here and there there might be an objection or different point of view on a specific recommendation but they are very few and not earth-shaking in character," he said. "Basically it's unanimous."

A reporter asked Rockefeller if he was implying that there was no "massive illegal domestic spying" by the CIA as alleged in original news reports last December.

"That would be a fair interpretation to draw from what I said, but that doesn't mean there haven't been things done that were wrong and we recommend extensive steps to be taken to prevent it in the future," he replied.

Rondout Valley Youth Killed

MARBLETOWN With graduation but three weeks away, a Rondout Valley High School senior died Sunday evening after diving onto a fallen tree in the Esopus Creek near Marbletown.

Killed in the tragic accident was John F. Schreyer, 17, of RD 3, Box 105A, Kingston.

The youth and several companions, who were not identified, were attempting to clear a fallen tree from a swimming hole near the intersection of Creekside Drive and Route 209 at about 6:15 p.m., police said.

Schreyer, despite protestations from his companions, climbed a 15-foot diving platform attached to a tree and attempted to dive over the fallen tree, about 15 feet from shore, police explained.

According to authorities, the youth struck the trunk of the tree with his head and chest. The water was about eight feet deep in the area, but the youth was able to make it from the water onto a small island, where he collapsed, complaining of chest pains, police said.

Schreyer was taken by ambulance to the Benedictine Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival. A post mortem examination was scheduled for today.

The son of John and Dorothy Schreyer, the youth was scheduled to graduate from Rondout Valley High School on June 22 with a Regents diploma.

School officials said Schreyer was planning to attend Finger Lakes Community College in the fall, where he was to pursue the study of photography. He had done some photography for his high school yearbook.

A participant during his high school career in both basketball and football, Schreyer recently took part in the Youth-In-Government program sponsored by the Ulster County Legislature.

Death Dominates Area Police Beat

By Matt Spireng

SOUTH CAIRO

A Greene County bicycle accident, and boating and tractor mishaps in Orange County claimed the lives of three persons during the weekend.

Walter West, 14, of South Cairo died Saturday at the Benedictine Hospital from head injuries sustained last Wednesday when he tumbled from his bicycle.

According to authorities, the boy was riding near his home when the family dog ran in front of him, causing him to swerve and fall from the bike, striking his head on the pavement.

In Orange County, Joseph Doulin Jr., 29, of Newburgh died Sunday after the boat in which he and two companions were fishing overturned in Brown's Pond.

State police said Doulin tried swimming to shore, about 100 yards away, but went under about 60 feet from shore. State police divers recovered the body.

On Saturday, John Turchin, 62, of New Hampton died at Horton Hospital in Middletown from injuries sustained last week in a farm tractor accident.

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

An intensive investigation and citizen cooperation led to the arrest Sunday of four Walden residents on burglary charges by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

According to deputies, the investigation began Memorial Day weekend following a series of burglaries in the Chestnut Hill Road area of the Town of Marletown. Residents were asked to call the sheriff's department if they saw anything suspicious. On Sunday they did, and police descended on the car carrying the four Walden residents.

Two in the car, identified as James Orsby, 20, and Kevin Schoonmaker, 19, fled into a wooded area. Following a lengthy search, they were caught several miles away attempting to hitchhike near Cottekill. Remaining with the car were Dennis W. Knapp, 20, and his wife, Bonnie, 20.

The Knapps were charged with three counts each of third degree burglary and one count of possession of burglar's tools. Schoonmaker and Orsby were each charged with four counts of third degree burglary and possession of burglar's tools.

Sheriff's Department detectives said all charges stemmed from alleged burglaries in the Chestnut Hill Road area.

Hurley State Police confiscated an estimated five pounds of marijuana and numerous weapons on Sunday and charged Michael A. Cline, 23, of Bearsville and Bradley A. Robbins, 20, of Glenford with felony possession of a controlled substance.

SPCA Elects Four Directors at Annual Meeting

STONE RIDGE

The Ulster County SPCA Saturday night elected four directors and rejected a bid from the audience to name a replacement for another who resigned during the meeting.

Elected to three-year terms on the 12-member board of directors were Anton Myrer of Saugerties (89 votes), Nancy O'Hara of Woodstock (78), Nancy Picoli of Kingston (86) and Marion Roevekamp of West Hurley (85). Trailing in the voting were Morrow Decker of Saugerties (33) and Alan Kane, former SPCA shelter manager (25).

A controversy over the board's firing of Kane earlier this year was reflected at the meeting. Mrs. Dorothy Carlson, Mrs. Dorothy Wilson, and Mrs. Marie Post, three directors who supported Kane in the dispute, did not join other directors on the stage of Quimby Hall on the Ulster County Community College campus, sitting in the audience instead.

Mrs. Post submitted a lengthy letter of resignation which was read after director voting had been completed. Mrs. Post said she was "not in accordance with" the board's goals and noted that she had not been assigned to any of the board's committees.

A man in the audience moved to vote on a replacement for Mrs. Post but Mrs. Mary Russell, SPCA president, ruled that the resignation had occurred during the meeting and that bylaws required such resignations to be filled by an appointment of the board, which she said would be done at the next meeting. An appeal of her ruling went to the SPCA attorney who ruled that the motion was out of order, saying no motion from the floor could change the group's bylaws. Mrs. Post noted that she had asked for her letter to be read prior to the election of directors.

Mrs. Roevekamp was the only one of four directors whose terms expired who ran for reelection. The other three successful candidates fill posts vacated by Mrs. Carlson, Mrs. Wilson and Norene Thorsen.

Board members at their next monthly meeting June 10 will elect officers for the coming year.

No proxy votes were permitted this year. At the 1974 annual election a dispute occurred over allowing members to vote by proxy, and voting was restricted this year to those who were present.

Disavow Doubled NYC Deficit Memo

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York City Budget Bureau has disavowed a confidential internal memorandum which forecast the city's $641.5 million budget deficit for 1975-76 would balloon to $1.3 billion the following fiscal year.

A spokesman for Budget Director Melvin Lechner Sunday night confirmed the existence of the memo, but maintained that Lechner, "upon checking it out," found "so many factual errors that he tore it up and threw it away."

According to published reports, the staff memo, entitled

"Preliminary Estimates 1976-77 and 1977-78," based its forecast of a doubled deficit on rising costs of debt service, pensions, salaries and other expenses which, it said, were far outstripping anticipated revenues.

Even if the coming fiscal year's budget were balanced, Mayor Abraham Beame would still have to cut expenditures in city agencies by 10 percent to avoid huge deficits in the future, the memo said.

It added the "weeding out of programs will be necessary even with favorable assumptions on closing the 1975-76 remaining gap and some modification in the rate of growth in expenditures."

The memo said the cuts would effect a large number of permanent civil servants as well as provisional employees.

The $11.9 billion "crisis budget" recently submitted by the mayor calls for the laying off of some 38,000 municipal workers in addition to dismissals announced previously.

In other developments in the city's fiscal crisis:

• Comptroller Harrison J. Goldin endorsed a proposal made by Gov. Hugh L. Carey's financial task force, to have some agency convert part of the city's short-term obligations into long-term debt. But, he declined to speculate whether this would result in usurpation of the city's sovereignty in financial matters.

• Five municipal unions were reportedly ready to withdraw more than $14 million in deposits from the First National City Bank to protest the bank's alleged role in bringing about the city's current cash flow crisis.

Budget Defeats

'Tis the thumping season for school budgets as voters have turned thumbs down one after another. Twice the submitted budget for the Rondout School District has gone down to defeat, and voters in Onteora, turning out in record numbers, overwhelmingly voted down that district's proposed budget.

All of which leaves the area's educators in somewhat of a quandry. Obviously the cost of education is rising, along with everything else, and school administrators and boards, sincerely desirous of providing quality education for their charges, have no other choice but to propose higher budgets. Their task is further complicated by mandated programs from the State Education Department.

Yet no blame can be placed on the harassed homeowner, whose costs of simply living also have escalated. In this state, the base of school funding is the property tax and most property owners are now paying all that the traffic will bear. So what about solutions?

The proposal that education be funded by a graduated income tax rather than by the traditional property tax makes more sense as time goes by. It would lift the burden from one section of taxpayers and distribute the cost of education more evenly. The state legislature is currently considering proposals along this line and we hope that sometime in the near future they will come up with an equitable solution.

Also helpful would be some common sense paring of expenses on the district level. Quality education does not necessarily equate itself with huge budgets. Competency and dedication of faculty are still the cornerstones of good education. It would go a long way toward helping a bad situation if many non-essential frills were discarded and we all returned to the concepts of basic education.

Peer Influence

It is a rare parent of teen-agers who escapes an occasional brush with that phenomenon known as peer influence. This manifests itself in various ways. Parents learn that in many cases not they nor churches nor schools, but approval of peers, plays the dominant role in determining conduct in the teens.

Whether this is a behavioral constant in all societies, we cannot say. It is interesting, however, to find that the phenomenon apparently does exist to some extent in the Soviet Union. There, according to Charles D. Cary's review of Soviet researchers' studies in Social Science Quarterly, as they grow older young people increasingly cite their peers as the chief "source of moral influence." The impact of official youth organizations correspondingly declines.

This is one more heartening indication that authoritarian power tends to be surmounted by common, if not universal, human reactions.

Berry's World

"Don't tell me your troubles, kid. I'm a housewife and I'm running away, too!"

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — In taking over the Middle East negotiations from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, President Ford must first gain Arab confidence.

We have spoken privately to several top Arab leaders. Without exception, they had the impression that Ford was a weak leader.

This has been corrected somewhat by his bold action in rescuing the merchant ship Mayaguez from the Cambodians. But they still suspect that Congress, not the President, will be calling the shots in the Middle East.

A congressional delegation, headed by Rep. Tip O'Neill, D.-Mass., and John Anderson, R-Ill., both powers in the House, called upon Egypt's President Sadat and Israel's Prime Minister Rabin earlier this spring.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Sadat's Strategy for Ford Talks

According to the confidential transcript, they gave the President a negative report. "Sadat and Rabin offered nothing new," said O'Neill. They agreed only, he added, to continue the step-by-step negotiations, with the United States as the mediator.

"I didn't notice, on the other hand, a disinclination to go to Geneva," warned Anderson. This would move the negotiations, with the to a forum where the Soviets would have a powerful voice.

Thus, President Ford began his talks with Sadat from behind the eight ball.

But the Arab leaders, who spoke to us with unusual candor after we agreed not to identify them, pointed out that the Arabs had taken pains to create a favorable environment for the Ford-Sadat talks.

Sadat personally flew to Damascus to persuade Syria's President Assad to extend the life of the United Nations force on the Golan Heights for another six months. As evidence of his own peaceful intentions, Sadat went ahead with the reopening of the Suez Canal.

And Saudi Arabia's new King Khalid backed down from the inflexible Saudi refusal to recognize Israel's right to exist.

The Arab leaders told us what Sadat's strategy would be at the Salzburg talks. The Egyptian leader intended to remind President Ford that the United States was committed to an Israeli pullback to its 1967 borders.

Sadat intended to ask the President, therefore, to put Israel on notice that the U.S. security umbrella extended only to the 1967 borders. This would increase the pressure on Israel, Sadat reportedly feels, to withdraw.

NIXON COMMITMENT: President Ford, after checking the White House records, has assured congressional leaders that his predecessor, Richard Nixon, made no secret commitments to South Vietnam's former President Thieu.

Speaking earnestly behind closed White House doors, the President insisted that the "confidential undertakings do not differ significantly from the public releases." There was "no substantive difference," he said, between the private pledges to Thieu and the public statements.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger then went into detail. He said the former President had given Thieu "two separate assurances" — first, that the United States "would react to violations" of the Paris peace accords and, second, that the United States would give economic aid to Hanoi "if the North abided by the agreement."

Kissinger stressed: "They were not agreements by the United States but statements by Richard Nixon of intentions. These did not differ materially from the public statements."

Footnote: At a subsequent secret session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Kissinger explained that Nixon had also indicated to Thieu that the United States would supply South Vietnam with military and economic aid. The former President made this point, said Kissinger, "in selling South Vietnam" on the Paris accords. But Kissinger insisted that "Nixon gave the opinion that Congress would be 'likely' to carry out a program of economic and military aid. It all depended on the approval of Congress."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The destroyer escort Holt steamed to the rescue of the merchant ship Mayaguez with a jerry-rigged five-inch gun. The gun had failed, a Navy spokesman acknowledged to us, because of a missing part. But he insisted it had been rigged to an alternate power source and would have fired adequately. . . . Actually, the Mayaguez was the eighth U.S. commercial vessel seized on the high seas this year, according to a State Department count. The other seven were tuna fishing boats, which Ecuadorian gunboats took into custody. . . .

Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., has urged President Ford to veto the energy legislation that is developing in the Senate. "If we can't sustain a veto," he told the President at the White House, "Congress will take all your petroleum powers away" . . . House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., sharply attacked President Ford for raising the import tax on oil. Apparently, this surprised the President who had been advised by Rep. Herman Schneebeli, R-Pa., according to the confidential transcript, that "Al Ullman will continue to try to help in my opinion" . . .

Stanley Sporkin, the Securities and Exchange Commission's tough enforcement chief, is not overly dismayed by the illegal political contributions made by a few corporations. While insisting that illegal practices be stamped out, he has told associates that far more corporations refused to make improper payments and that most business leaders have high integrity. . . .

After six years of pushing through bills to feed the poor and the helpless, the Senate Nutrition subcommittee's two top staff members, Ken Schlossberg and Gerry Cassidy, are quietly going into private consulting work.

Inside Report

Energy Over the Environment

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The basic reason President Ford defied conventional political logic to cast his second veto of a bill to control strip-mining was summed up in private advice from Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Burns, the nation's independent central banker, is not a member of the administration. But his views are respected by Mr. Ford, and he often attends White House councils. He was present at one of the two sessions discussing the strip-mining bill and was asked his opinion. His pithy reply: "Mr. President, I don't think we ought to be doing anything now to increase the imports of oil."

If Mr. Ford had lingering doubts, that probably resolved them. As Burns indicated, the veto was essentially an energy decision ruling out interference with coal production as an alternative to oil. That shows how deeply the President has become committed to the energy question, giving replacement of oil by other energy sources priority over politically popular environmental questions. Thus, officials in the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) view the strip-mining veto as more important than raising the oil import tax another dollar. In fact, they view it as the President's more important energy decision so far.

Beyond energy, the veto suggests a toughened presidential style following the Mayaguez incident. Mr. Ford was turning away from his congressional style of conciliation by vetoing the bill in the face of popular support, mixed Republican attitudes in Congress and deeply divided advice within his own administration.

Divided though that advice was, there was no doubt among FEA officials. Contending that recently enacted state regulation prevents the environmental outrages of old-time strip-mining, they shuddered over 5,000 new federal regulatory bureaucrats. More important, they considered vital a precedent of Mr. Ford giving energy priority over environment in a forthcoming series of such choices.

Nevertheless, there was little veto optimism at FEA. They feared that, having drawn fire from environmentalists for his first strip-mining veto last December, Mr. Ford would not risk another barrage.

Some major figures in last December's internal debate over the first veto now took a back seat. Treasury Secretary William Simon still opposed the bill but is now out of energy policy's mainstream. Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton, who as head of the Energy Resources Council pleaded for signing last year's bill, was on a Far Eastern trip this time. Budget director James Lynn advocated a veto but mitigated his advice with this codicil: if a congressional override seemed likely, don't veto but negotiate with Congress to ease enforcement of the new law.

The Interior Department's bureaucracy was bitterly divided. What's more, it was feared an Interior Department recommendation to veto would leak out and endanger prospects for Senate confirmation of former Gov. Stanley Hathaway of Wyoming as Secretary of the Interior.

The upshot was a solomonic decision by Kent Frizzell, Interior Department solicitor and acting secretary during Hathaway's travail. His paper to the President was stacked with pro-veto arguments — but wound up recommending approval.

That left the basic debate to two of the administration's most articulate and forceful figures: Environmental Protection administrator Russell Train and Federal Energy administrator Frank Zab.

Train, arguing for federal regulation of strip-mining, contended Congress had gone far toward meeting administration objections and, therefore, the new bill should be signed. Zab vigorously disputed that, maintaining Congress really had changed nothing. He then urged a veto — to maximize coal production, prevent unemployment of miners and avert a new federal bureaucracy. With Congress immobilized on general energy legislation, Zab contended, a veto of this bill was imperative.

Political considerations discussed at the two meetings all ran against a veto. Ford aides noted that environment still eclipses energy in the public mind, particularly when involving the visible pollution of past strip-mining. It was noted that Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, the bill's author and a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, would make highly vocal use of the veto.

Uncharacteristically, Mr. Ford did not reveal his own thinking during the meetings. Indeed, the veto itself was also uncharacteristic of his presidency. Just a month ago, even Republicans were grumbling that his administration stood for nothing and Mr. Ford still acted like a compromise-seeking Congressman. But the veto now suggests Mr. Ford is becoming more presidential and less congressional. For that reason alone, unpopular though it is among mass opinion, the veto could turn out to be the best politics of all.

The World Series of Poker

Amarillo Slim strutted into Binion's Horseshoe Casino with a foot-long Remington .44 stuck straight down in his pants. He touched his cowboy hat off his brow and said, "Ah'm gonna shoot anybody who cheats at poker." I said, "If that thing goes off, you're gonna be out of action for a week."

The World Series of Poker started on that note. Twenty-one players arrived in Las Vegas, each armed with $10,000. The last man would walk out with $210,000. If a player loses his poke, he can't buy back in.

Jack Binion set up three green felt tables and all played a brand of poker called "Hold 'Em." Each player gets two cards face down. Anybody can open for a hundred or a thousand. Anybody can increase the opening amount. Players stay in or drop out.

Three cards are then dealt face up on the table by the dealer. This is called the "Flop House." There is a second round of betting. Each player is trying to make a winning hand out of the two cards he holds, and those on the table.

A fourth card, called "Fourth Story," is laid face up. More betting. Then a fifth card is placed face up. Players with three of a kind will bet $2,000, only to be shaken out of the tree by a $4,000 advance by someone with a full house. The player who can make a flush or a straight flush out of the total of seven cards will freeze everybody out.

Amarillo Slim was through on the first night of play, stony broke. I asked what happened. "Ah was bettin' when ah shoulda been sweatin'," he said and walked out with his cannon and adjacent scenery intact.

Outside the rail, spectators were betting each other who would win the next hand. Most of the champions come from Texas, and they are professional players. Each has been busted many times in poker, but they have no sweat glands.

On the morning of the third day of play, four players remained. Softly, they kidded each other at one table. They riffled and clacked their stacks of chips incessantly. The sound was like the seven sorrowful mysteries.

Sailor Roberts was still alive with $63,700. So was Aubrey Day of Alabama with $62,200. The third was Crandall Addington of San Antonio with $53,600. B. Hooks had a plaid jacket and a big cigar and $30,500.

Roberts looks like a young Jackie Gleason, a man who smiles at the other players with a pair of blue ball bearings. Aubrey Day, in a maroon jacket and tie, a polite man with deep dark wavy hair, frowned as he accepted a $4,000 opening bet and upped it $16,000.

He won with a pair of aces over Roberts' pair of kings. Addington was the coll fop in the dark gold shades. They say he has never worn any suit twice.

The three with the most money were trying to freeze Hooks out. If they could do it, the 21 players would be reduced to three. Addington smiled at the ash on his cigar. He dropped out of a hand. Day and the Sailor ran Hooks' bet up to every last chip.

He was not in the freezer. He won the pot with a full house. Hooks is the only man I know who can look off at a wall, take a pile of $1,000 chips and a pile of $100s, shuffle them together with a rattle, and separate them properly while dreaming of the next hand.

Of the 21 only one, a Texas oil millionaire, was not a professional gambler. He put up his $10,000 entry fee and was beaten to death. But then he told me that three years ago he'd drilled 24 dry holes — which is gambling. The next year he had 26 gushers out of 30 drillings.

Amarillo Slim will clock a sunrise if the odds are right. He once bet Evel Knievel he could beat him at golf using only a hammer. Slim won.

On the fifth day, Crandall and Day were wiped out. Sailor Roberts had $150,000. Hooks was back up with $59,000. Hooks had to win a big one to remain alive.

The impassive dealer dealt the Sailor two jacks. Hooks peeked at a jack of clubs and a nine of clubs. Possible straight flush. He bet $10,000. Roberts upped it another 10. The face-up flop showed a seven of hearts, a six of clubs and a deuce of clubs.

Hooks pushed his entire pile out waiting for a club. Roberts called. The final card was a 10 of hearts. Hooks had a pair of nines. Roberts won it all with a pair of jacks.

He clasped his hands on top of his head and yawned. He didn't want to think of the tax on $210,000. . . .

Madcap Comedy 'Enter Laughing' On KHS Stage for 3-Night Run

Joseph Stein's hit comedy, "Enter Laughing," based on Carl Reiner's hilarious novel, will begin a three-night run at the Kingston High School auditorium Tuesday night, June 5.

Performances also will be given Friday and Saturday nights. Curtain time is 8 o'clock each night. Tickets may be obtained at the door at all three performances.

"Enter Laughing" deals with the comic adventures of 18-year-old David Kolowitz, currently employed at a machine repair shop, but who has decided to become an actor. Through enlisting in a cut-rate theater group, David, played by high school senior Bill Briwa, fulfills this dream. Soon it becomes extremely obvious that he just isn't cut out to be an actor, and in trying to be one, sets entertaining back a few years.

Much to the dismay of his extremely Jewish parents (Lisa Gruber and Barry Ford) and his old world boss (Bill Kassler), David launches his acting career in the Marlowe School for the Dramatic Arts run by an experienced toughened actor, Marlowe (Andy Granitto) and his stage manager, Pike (Evan Matthews). In doing so he leaves behind a string of girl friends; Wanda, the girl next door (Elaine Lipton), the zoffig book-keeper (Rose Schuler) and even Marlowe's daughter Angela, a very affected actress (Randi Aaron).

During all this, the play by the same author of "Fiddler on the Roof" leaves the audience without a moments rest from the laughter brought on by the numerous sight gags and one-liners due mainly to the superb direction by Joseph Happeny, a theater arts teacher at the school and director.

Known for his fine works in the Kingston area among them: KHS's "You Can't Take It With You", M.A.A.'s "The Git-Away" and two high powered one-acts for the Coach House Players "No Exit" and "Suddenly Last Summer," marks his fourth show at KHS with "Enter Laughing."

Filling out the cast are David's best friend, Marvin (Adam Landes) a young man just short of worshipping his hero David, and the comic walk-ons who are actors and stage hands (Steve Tremper, Paul Hansen and Ed DeHoff) and the character gum chewing, hip slinging waitress (Anne Greta Maziotta.) Also not to be forgotten is the total mastery of all female roles by the understudy Allison Rust.

Happeny's play is the high school's first period play, set in New York City of the late 1930s. The production crew, led by Sue Martino and the assistant director Jane Roosa, have combined their forces to make this year's play one madcap comedy and fine acting worth seeing by all interested in good theater.

Comic adventures of 18-year-old David Kolowitz the backdrop for Joseph Stein's hit comedy on boards of Kingston High School . . . June 5, 6 and 7.

HOLLY HOFFMAN

Lily Shohan, program chairperson of the Mid-Hudson Rose Society, conducted a pruning demonstration for members of the organization during a recent meeting.

Pruning Roses...Looking Ahead

Pruning rose bushes should be done in the spring of the year since bushes left intact are better able to survive the winter weather.

That was the comment of Lily Shohan, program chairperson of the Mid-Hudson Rose Society, who offered some timely pruning tips during a recent meeting of the society.

Basically, she said, pruning a modern type, hybrid tea, grandiflora or floribunda rose bush consists of removing all the dead wood, cutting out thin, damaged or diseased canes and canes that criss-cross and injure each other.

"When cutting a cane at the bud-union or graft, the cut should be made very close with no stubs remaining," the speaker stressed. Cuts that shorten a cane should be made about a quarter of an inch above a live bud, she added.

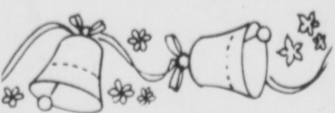

Lily Shohan said a well-pruned rose bush will be about 12 to 15 inches in height when pruning is finished and will have only the strongest, straightest, canes remaining. "Mastering the techniques of pruning will help the grower to produce blooms of good quality — quality that is necessary for exhibition or competition," the speaker concluded.

All of the tips offered by the program chairperson came at an opportune time — the Rose Society is now planning for its second annual rose show Sunday, June 22, at the Inter-County Savings Bank in New Paltz, from 2 to 7 p.m.

Meanwhile, much interest is being shown in the society's scheduled bus trip to the Brooklyn Botanical Gardens on Saturday, June 7.

Mrs. Ernest Lindroth, R.D. 2, Box 161-C, listed in the Woodstock section of the telephone directory, may be contacted for details and reservations.

For Children's Home . . . Board Members, Officers

The annual dinner for the Board of Directors of the Children's Home of Kingston was held May 29 at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The new officers for the coming year were announced.

They are Mrs. James De Rose, president; Nelson Burhans, first vice-president; Mrs. Bernard Farrell, second vice-president; Mrs. Herbert Gade, treasurer; Mrs. John Al-ley, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Kendal Vogt, recording secretary and Mrs. William Hilton, corresponding secretary.

At the dinner the new board members were welcomed. Added to the board were Mrs. Michael Kavanagh, Mrs. Robert Markes and Lowell E.

Smith. Mrs. Jack Gill and Mrs. Abraham Streifer are also new to the Board this year.

A special tribute was given to Lawrence B. Siewers, executive director, in commemoration of his 10 years of leadership at the Children's Home.

In the past decade the child-caring agency has developed its day treatment and residential programs, on-campus special education school, foster care, and agency-owned boarding home programs.

Started in 1876 as the Industrial Home providing food, shelter and training for orphans, the agency now provides emotional rehabilitation for boys from Ulster and other counties in New York State. While continuing in its effort to serve the needs of people, the Children's Home has evolved from an East Chester Street orphanage to a multi-service agency on a five-acre site at 26 Grove Street.

Commenting on the changes, the out-going president of the board, Mrs. Arthur W. Hazenbush remarked, "The fight for good child care is tough, but as long as we have a board as strong as this one, progress is bound to continue."

Velvet Painting At YWCA

Mrs. Stella Atkinson is scheduled to give a demonstration on the art of painting on velvet Tuesday, June 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, Kingston. The program is sponsored by the Ulster County Art Association which will hold its regular meeting the same night.

Mrs. Atkinson, Kingston art teacher, has given many exhibits and studied privately with leading artists including Brock Brockenshaw, Mr. Jeffery and the late Mr. Vukovic of Woodstock. An active member of the Association, she is now its vice chairman.

Painting on velvet is reported to be an early form of decorative art. In the late 19th Century it was used as a small picture or portrait done on metal canvas, ivory and velvet.

The original programming on portrait painting was cancelled, according to an Association release.

Open Meeting

There will be an open meeting to discuss the advantages of a Meals on Wheels program in the Woodstock area and to evaluate the community's interest in this endeavor. The meeting will take place Tuesday, June 3, at 8 p.m. in Christ's Lutheran Church Fellowship Hall, Mill Hill Road, Woodstock.

The service that this non-profit organization would provide is a noontime hot meal delivered five days a week to the elderly, the convalescent and the homebound. Individuals who would avail themselves of this program are generally single householders who, for one reason or another, are at a handicap to shop and to cook. Meals on Wheels would assure them of at least one nutritionally sound meal a day at a minimum cost.

Dear Abby: Dad, Sons Should Go Fishing

By Abigail Van Buren
1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Each year my husband and our teenage sons spend a week up north fishing. They love it. I hate it. I wish my husband and the boys would go without me, but when I mention it, my husband says, "No, we'll just skip it this year because Mom doesn't want to go." The boys are disappointed and Mom is the heavy.

Abby, before we had children, I went fishing with my husband so he would have companionship, and I plan to do it again when the children are gone. When the boys were small I went without complaint because I felt I was needed; small boys could at times be more problems than pleasure for a man on a week's fishing trip.

But the boys are not children now, and they couldn't care less whether I went along or not. The fishing week is the high spot of their year. And it's my absolute lowest.

Am I wrong to want to stay home? It would be a great vacation for me not having to cook, wash or iron. Help me, Abby, They believe in you.

ALL FISHED OUT
DEAR FISHED: IMPORE Dad to let you off the hook this time. You've earned your stay-at-home vacation. (P.S. To the men in your house: "DON'T NAG—GO STAG!")

DEAR ABBY: I read a letter in your column from a woman who couldn't bring herself to spend the inheritance money her mother had left her. The reason: When she (the daughter) was struggling with a young family to make ends meet, her mother (who could have well afforded it) gave her no help at all.

Years later, when the daughter no longer needed anything, her mother died and left her a small fortune.

Mid-Hudson Library Films in Paltz and Woodstock

Tom Dewitt, whose work has been screened by the Whitney Museum, New York City, and who has received various domestic and international grants, will present his film The Fall on Wednesday, June 4, 8 p.m. at the Elting Memorial Library, New Paltz.

System and its member libraries. The same program will be presented Thursday, June 5, 8 p.m., at the Adriance Memorial Library, Poughkeepsie, and Saturday, June 7, 8 p.m., at the Woodstock Public Library.

The film is an experimental one, produced during the height of the war in Vietnam, and reflects an anti-war sentiment. A slide presentation will follow.

Dewitt will speak on the techniques of film making and will answer questions. The public is invited to attend without charge.

The Mid-Hudson Library System, a service center aiding 64 libraries in the counties of Ulster, Columbia, Dutchess, Greene and Putnam has organized the event, together with future presentations by five other filmmakers, under a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

FUNERAL DIRECTOR

DEAR ABBY: I noticed a letter in your column from a minister who complained because after he had officiated at burial services for people who didn't even belong to his church, their families failed to pay him for his services.

I don't know how other folks handle it, but here in Tacoma, Wash., the funeral director just adds $25 to the cost of the funeral, and he pays the minister without bothering the family.

Not long ago, I received a letter from an elderly couple who was making funeral arrangements in advance. Enclosed was a check for $25 with the following note: "We want to be buried together. This should cover it."

Patman May Do It Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., 81 years old and nursing a grudge, says he probably will run for a 25th term in the House if his health permits — and he feels fine.

Rocking back and forth in his high black leather chair, Patman appeared in an interview to have mellowed in his new status as a deprived chairman.

As always, he carries on about the greedy big banks, about Arthur Burns, about Nelson Rockefeller's excessive power "which reaches into every one of the country's 3,071 counties."

But he offers unexpected praise for Treasury Secretary William E. Simon as "very able, as knowledgeable as you can find, with a sincere desire to do things in the interest of the country."

Ryan's Express Rolls to Fourth Career No-Hitter

Four of a Kind

Nolan Ryan is all smiles in the dressing room in Anaheim Sunday after he pitched the fourth no-hitter of his career to beat Baltimore, 1-0. With the performance, Ryan set the American League record for most no-hitters and tied Sandy Koufax for the Major League mark. (UPI)

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Nolan Ryan has blazed his way to glory again, and in the opinion of Hall of Famer Sandy Koufax, there will be more magnificent achievements before the California Angels' right-hander is finally burned out.

The 28-year-old Ryan equalled Koufax's major league career record of four no-hitters Sunday when he stopped the Baltimore Orioles 1-0, and the former Dodger left-hander figures Ryan will break that record in the near future.

"There was no doubt he was going to do it," Koufax said. "The only question now is how many more he's going to pitch. I think it might be 10 or 12 with the kind of fastball he has."

The closest thing Baltimore got to a hit Sunday came in the seventh inning when pinch-hitter Tommy Davis hit a slow grounder that rookie second baseman Jerry Remy had to scoop up and throw sidearm across his body to nip Davis by a half-step.

Immediately after retiring Davis, Ryan faced his only jam of the day when he walked Bobby Grich and allowed Lee May to reach base on an error by shortstop Billy Smith. But Ryan got Brooks Robinson to ground out and then retired Elrod Hendricks on a pop out to end the inning.

In the ninth, with the crowd of 18,492 urging him on, he retired Al Bumbry on a fly to left, got Davis on a bouncer to second and caught Grich looking at a third strike for his ninth strikeout.

The victory was the 100th of his major league career and his ninth this season in 12 decisions, but Ryan was unemotional about equalling Koufax's record.

"I don't put any emphasis on records or go out there feeling I'll pitch a no-hitter," said Ryan. "I just go out there and try to win for the club. I was hoping for a big game today to turn the team around. I was mainly trying to keep the other team from scoring."

"Around the fifth inning, I became aware that a no-hitter was possible. But it was a day game and Baltimore has a lot of good hitters, so I just went out there to get out by out. Of course, you hope everything can fall into place. I had good velocity today and I had a good curve and changeup. Everything seemed to go right."

In other AL games, Oakland defeated Cleveland 6-3, Boston outslugged Minnesota 11-9, New York downed Texas 8-4, Kansas City swept Milwaukee 13-6 and 11-5 and Chicago edged Detroit 3-2 after losing 5-1.

Atlanta defeated Pittsburgh 5-2, Philadelphia edged Houston 5-4, San Diego blanked New York 4-0, Chicago topped Los Angeles 7-2, Cincinnati beat St. Louis 5-1 and San Francisco routed Montreal 13-5.

A's 6, Indians 3

Claudell Washington hit a two-run homer and Phil Garner had three hits to spark Oakland over Cleveland. Sonny Siebert, with relief help from Rollie Fingers, picked up his second straight win since coming to the A's from San Diego on May 20. Gaylord Perry was the loser.

Red Sox 11, Twins 9

Carl Yastrzemski, Doug Griffin, Fred Lynn and Jim Rice hit home runs to power Boston past Minnesota. Jim Hughes, who had won six straight and had the lowest earned run average in the AL, lasted only 1 2-3 innings as the Red Sox bombed him for seven hits and seven runs.

Yankees 8, Rangers 4
Chris Chambliss hit a three-run double and Bobby Bonds cracked his 11th homer to lead New York over Texas. Rudy May, despite allowing nine walks, went the distance for the Yankees to win his fifth game in seven decisions. Ferguson Jenkins suffered his third straight loss and evened his record at 5-5.

Royals 13-11, Brewers 5-6
Harmon Killebrew drove in three runs with a single and a double in the opener and John Mayberry drove in five runs with a homer, double and a single in the nightcap as Kansas City swept Milwaukee. Tony Solaita and George Brett also homered for the Royals in the second game. Kansas City has now won nine of its last 10 games while Milwaukee has lost 10 of its last 11.

Tigers 5-2, White Sox 1-3
Mickey Lolich pitched a seven-hitter in the opener to pace Detroit to victory but Chicago came back to win the nightcap on Rich Gossage's 4 2-3 innings of one-hit relief. Lolich moved past Bob Feller into sixth place on the all-time strikeout list by fanning three. Bob Stein homered for the White Sox in the opener while Leon Roberts connected for Detroit and Carlos May for Chicago in the second game.

Jerry Remy Understands

ANAHEIM (UPI) — "It kind of looks like people don't want to hit against him," California Angels' rookie second baseman Jerry Remy said. "But I can understand that. I know I wouldn't."

Remy made the big play in the field Sunday as Nolan Ryan recorded his fourth career no-hitter to equal Sandy Koufax's major league record as the Angels beat the Baltimore Orioles 1-0.

Remy nipped Baltimore pinch-hitter Tommy Davis at first in the seventh inning after fielding a slow grounder and throwing sidearm across his body to first baseman Bruce Bochte.

"On that play," the California second baseman said, "I was shading Davis up the middle. The throw was a do-or-die play. Bruce told me later that it wasn't as close as it looked, though."

"There was a lot of tension out there. By the seventh, I was shaking more than Ryan."

Recording his 100th career victory, the fireballing Ryan used a changeup to fool the Orioles' Bobby Grich for a called third strike to end the game.

"Yes, I called for it," said Angel catcher Ellie Rodriguez. "Grich was really surprised. Ryan hit his spots today."

"I definitely was expecting a fastball," noted Grich. "But he fooled me and put it in a perfect spot on the outside corner."

"Really, the scoreboard tells the whole story. Ryan is tough, real tough."

A crowd of 18,492 watched Ryan's no-hitter at Anaheim Stadium and the California right-hander said he appreciated its support.

"If I'm going to have a good game like this, I want to do it at home," he said. "You know this game is meant to be for the fans' appreciation."

One of Ryan's fans was his pretty wife, Ruth. She bolted from her seat near the dugout and kissed him at the end of the game.

"As you might have noticed," the pitcher said, "my wife was quite excited after the game."

Ryan noted that he had lost his previous two starts—to Boston and Cleveland—and hadn't won in two weeks.

"My arm has felt very alive the past couple weeks, too," he stressed. "In fact, I had my best velocity of the year my last two games and I got beat bad."

Murtaugh Fears the Cubs

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Manager Danny Murtaugh of the Pittsburgh Pirates insists the Chicago Cubs "should be taken seriously"—and maybe some other National League teams should heed the advice.

"It looks like a case of young players developing suddenly," Murtaugh has been saying since the start of the season. "So suddenly that most people think they're not a solid club. But I think they are."

The Cubs may also have helped to convince the NL champion Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday when they beat the Dodgers 7-2 and moved to within a half game of the first-place Pirates in the league's Eastern Division.

Oscar Zamora, a 30-year old right-hander from Cuba who is rapidly developing into one of the league's most effective relievers, received credit for his sixth save with three shutout innings in relief of Bill Bonham. The victory was the fifth against four losses for Bonham, who had an 11-22 won-lost record in 1974.

Manny Trillo singled during a three-run second inning and hit a two-run single in a three-run seventh to lead the Cubs' eight-hit attack. Andy Thornton homered for the Cubs and Joe Ferguson for the Dodgers as Burt Hooton suffered his fifth setback against three wins.

Atlanta defeated Pittsburgh 5-2, Cincinnati beat St. Louis 5-1, San Diego downed the New York Mets 4-0, Philadelphia shaded Houston 5-4 and San Francisco bombed Montreal 13-5 in other NL games.

In the American League, it was California 1 Baltimore 0 as Nolan Ryan pitched the fourth no-hitter of his career, Oakland 6 Cleveland 3, Boston 11 Minnesota 9, Kansas City over Milwaukee 13-6 and 11-5, Chicago over Detroit 3-2 after a 5-1 loss and New York 8 Texas 4.

Braves 5, Pirates 2

Dusty Baker hit two homers and Phil Niekro went the distance with a 10-hitter for his fifth victory as Atlanta snapped Pittsburgh's six-game winning streak. It was Niekro's first win over the Pirates since Aug. 10, 1973. Jim Rooker, tagged for four runs and seven hits in 6 2-3 innings, was the loser.

Reds 5, Cardinals 1

Joe Morgan's three-run homer and Johnny Bench's two-run double were the big blows for Cincinnati, which dealt St. Louis' Bob Forsch his fourth setback. Jack Billingham pitched a five-hitter to win his fifth game for the Reds.

Padres 4, Mets 0

Alan Foster went seven innings for his third victory for San Diego, with Danny Frisella finishing off the shutout. Randy Tate's wild pitch enabled the Padres to score two runs in the first inning and Dave Winfield hit two opposite field doubles, scored one run and knocked in another.

Phillies 5, Astros 4

Jay Johnstone's third homer of the season provided Philadelphia with the winning run as Tom Underwood gained credit for his sixth win with the relief help of Larry Christensen. Houston's Larry Dierker yielded all the Phillies' runs in five innings and saw his record squared at 5-5.

Giants 13, Expos 5

Bobby Murcer drove in four runs with a pair of two-run homers, Jake Brown hit a three-run double and Marc Hill had a two-run single for San Francisco as Mike Caldwell picked up his second win. Larry Parrish, Pete Mackanin, Mike Jorgensen and Gary Carter homered for Montreal.

Birthday Check for Irwin

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hale Irwin's family is going to have a hard time topping the birthday present he gave himself. Irwin, who will be 30 Tuesday, got himself a check for $45,000 Sunday, shooting a course record 17-under-par 271 to win the Atlanta Golf Classic by a comfortable four strokes.

And he did both in competition against the best field that pro golf can assemble. The $225,000 Classic was one of only two "designated" events on the PGA tour this year, one of only two in which all the top golfers were obligated to participate. (The other will be the Tournament Players Championship at Fort Worth in August.)

Oddly enough, although Irwin, who will be defending his U.S. Open championship in less than three weeks, was never less than two strokes in front throughout the final round Sunday, he said he "never was at ease."

"I kept feeling that I had to make birdies," said Irwin. "I kept feeling that someone was going to make a run at me." Irwin, whose closing 68 gave him four straight rounds in the 60s, apparently had no one to fear but himself.

Tom Watson finished four strokes back at 68-275; Charles Coody was third at 70-276; and Jack Nicklaus (69), Johnny Miller (70) and Miller Barber all weresix strokes back in a tie for fourth place.

Irwin's victory raised his earnings for this year past the $125,000 mark even though it was his first win since the 1974 Open. Watson got $25,650 ("a nice little check") and also passed the $125,000 mark.

"I went out with the distinct impression that I'd have to shoot in the 60s," said Irwin. "I wanted at least a 69."

As it turned out a 71, while it would not have broken the record Nicklaus set in 1973 and tied in 1974, would have won. So Irwin was asked why he thought no one made a real run at him.

"It's Sunday," he replied. "It's choking day. I would have hated to be chasing me."

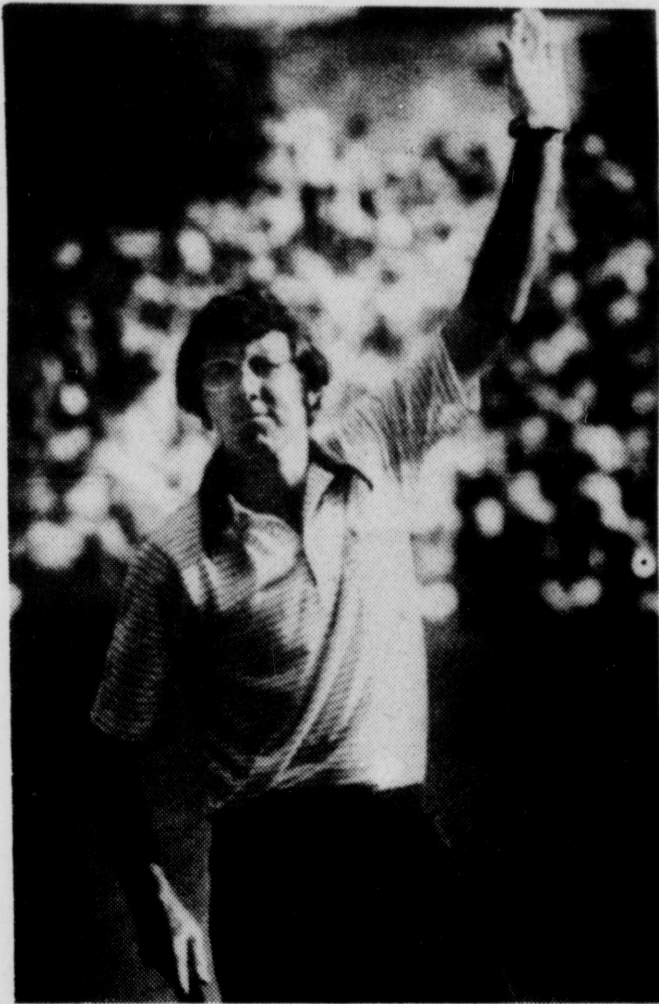

It's hard to figure people like Nicklaus and Miller "choking," but neither ever got close enough to Irwin to make it interesting. Irwin, starting the day with a three-stroke lead which he had said "could vanish in one hole on this course," bogeyed right off the bat and said he "got perturbed at myself with a start like that."

But he turned the front nine in two-under, building a four-stroke lead through the first eight holes, and the only question the rest of the way was whether he'd set a new 72-hole record on the hilly Atlanta Country Club course.

Irwin was at the former record, 16-under, when he got back-to-back birdies at the 66th and 67th holes and decided to start playing it safe.

"I figured I had a good enough lead that I could start lagging my putts," he said. "I figured that par golf the rest of the way in would win, that there was no sense in going for the flag."

But he changed his mind as he approached the 72nd hole. "I asked myself Saturday night what I would do if I got to the final hole with more than a two-stroke lead," said Irwin.

Hail, Irwin

Hale Irwin, U.S. Open champion, waves to the crowd on the 18th hole Sunday after winning the Atlanta Classic with a 17-under-par 271, a tournament record. (UPI)

"I decided I had nothing to lose at that point, that I'd rather end with a flourish."

That he did.

He reached the green in two on the par-5 hole and almost sank a 40-foot eagle putt. The short putt that followed gave him the record.

"Now that," said Irwin with a wide grin, "is the way a winner should behave."

Rain Was Sunshine for Kathy

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Kathy Whitworth didn't let a little rain bother her as she played steady, but not spectacular golf, to edge Sandra Haynie by one stroke Sunday in the $55,000 LPGA championship.

The all-time leading LPGA money winner picked up $8,000 for the victory, her first in more than 14 months and her third LPGA championship.

"Just because I haven't been winning doesn't mean I don't want to win," said Miss Whitworth, who became the seventh person inducted into the LPGA Hall of Fame last Monday. "The feeling I have isn't like it was after my first win or even my first LPGA title, but it's my first victory as a Hall of Fame member and that means a lot."

Miss Whitworth claimed her even-par 73 final round was "not unusual" on the rain-splattered Pine Ridge course, where a heavy thunderstorm halted play for 80 minutes for the second time in as many days.

"The rain delay didn't bother me and I've played that way lots of times here," the Richardson, Tex., native said. "The delay may have affected other scores, but it didn't hurt me."

Although she said she "wasn't putting that well," Miss Whitworth took command on the next-to-last hole with a 5-foot birdie putt. She finished with 16 pars, one birdie and a bogey to overcome Miss Haynie's two-stroke advantage going into the last nine.

"I lost my momentum during the delay," said Miss Haynie, of Fort Worth, Tex., but she still managed to birdie the 13th and 16th holes enroute to a one-over par 74.

"I really don't want to blame losing on the weather," she added. "If I feel bad its only because I thought I let it get away."

Miss Whitworth's victory increased her 1975 winnings to $14,378.50, 11th on this year's tour.

Miss Haynie won $5,650 while JoAnn Washam, who finished with a 290 after a final round two-under par 71, collected $4,300.

Sandra Palmer, the leading money winner on the tour this year, finished in a three-way tie for sixth with 293, but her earnings of $1,875 boosted her 1975 total to $47,582.91.

Donna Caponi Young, who finished fourth with 219, collected $3,300 to move into fifth place on the 1975 list with $26,335.

Kathy Whitworth will be in the field of nearly 100 women professionals for the 54-hole Girl Talk Magazine Classic starting Friday at the Carvel Farms All-American Golf and Tennis Club in Pine Plains.

Virtually all of the leading money winners on the LPGA circuit are scheduled to play in the tournament, the only one in the Northeast this year.

An 18-hole Pro-Am is scheduled Wednesday with the induction of Patty Berg into the Collegiate Hall of Fame and the dedication of the women's wing highlighting Thursday's program.

Mickey Lolich Nears An 'Obscure' Record

DETROIT (UPI) — The spotlight has always shone on somebody else during Mickey Lolich's career, the same fate that befell Yankee star Lou Gehrig.

Sunday was no different for Lolich despite another milestone performance by the portly left-hander of the Detroit Tigers.

Lolich moved to within two of becoming baseball's all-time greatest left-handed strikeout pitcher in hurling the Detroit Tigers to a 5-1 victory over Chicago in the first game of a doubleheader. The White Sox came back to take the second game, 3-2.

But Lolich's 201st career victory, which broke a tie with Hal Newhouser and gave him more wins than any left-hander in Detroit history, was clearly overshadowed by the fourth career no-hitter of California's Nolan Ryan against Baltimore Sunday.

The Portland, Ore., native's 13-year career has been like that. First it was Denny McLain grabbing all the headlines, then Billy Martin, then Al Kaline, or a pitcher on another team. This time it was Ryan.

Gehrig's career was the same. Babe Ruth got all the attention while the Yankee first baseman quietly did his job. And there was the memorable day when Gehrig hit four home runs in one game, the same day John McGraw chose to retire as manager of the New York Giants.

The three batters Lolich struck out gave him a career total of 2,582, moving him past Bob Feller into fifth position on the all-time list and just two shy of passing Warren Spahn for the most hitters struck out by a southpaw.

"That'll be something great in some ways," Lolich said of the impending achievement, which should come Friday in his next start. "Maybe when guys write about me in other towns it won't be as that fat left-hander. Maybe they'll start calling me that talented left-hander and get off that other thing."

"I started this season saying this could possibly be my last season. Last season was embarrassing," he said of his 16-21 year. His 4.15 earned run average was his worst since 1966.

"I was beginning to wonder if I could get guys out any more," Lolich said. "I want to be respectable. Right now I want to come back and have a halfway decent season."

Lakers Talking With Bucks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers admit they're talking to the Milwaukee Bucks about acquiring Kareem Abdul-Jabbar but they say that's all there is to it. "We've (the Lakers and Bucks) been talking for months and are still talking," Dick White, the Los Angeles publicist, said. "Who else would we be talking about but Jabbar? But so is everybody else in the league. If we make any deal, of course, we'll announce it."

A sportscaster Friday night reported that the Lakers and the Bucks were "close" to an agreement that would bring the former UCLA All-America back to Los Angeles.

In exchange for Jabbar, the Lakers reportedly would give Milwaukee center Elmore Smith, guard Brian Winters and the NBA rights to their No. 1 draft choices of last week, Dave Meyers of UCLA and Junior Bridgeman of Louisville.

Lakers owner Jack Kent Cooke said the reported trade was "titillating" but denied that the teams were close to a deal. Milwaukee General Manager Wayne Embry was registered at a hotel here but was unavailable for comment.

Meanwhile, Jabbar also has been in Los Angeles visiting friends, including ex-UCLA and Bucks' teammate Lucius Allen, now a Laker guard.

"Management keeps players in the dark about things like this," Allen said. "Kareem doesn't know too much. We'd heard if something happened, it would happen with the New York Knicks."

Jabbar and the Bucks didn't even make the NBA playoffs this past season. He said he was unhappy in Milwaukee and wanted to be traded to either New York or Los Angeles.

Bob Meyers of La Habra, Calif., the father of 6-8 All-America Dave Meyers, the second player picked in the NBA draft last Thursday, said he felt Porter's report was correct.

"I have a buddy high up in the Bucks' organization and there is a package being put together that involves David, Bridgeman, Smith and Winters," he said. "Nothing's official yet but I think it's going to happen soon ... very soon."

Smith, the Lakers' starting center last season, said, "If it's true, it wouldn't surprise me."

Smith Paces Circuit Shoot

LAKE KATRINE
Eugene Smith's string of 50 straight hits helped the Wawarsing Sportsmen's Association to a winning 237 out of 250 score in the team event of the weekly Ulster County Circuit Shoot at the Lake Katrine trap range Sunday.

Ray Markle with 49, Fred Van Wagner with 47, Dan Curry with 46 and Dick Curry with 45 completed the total for the winners. New Paltz Rod and Gun was second at 230, and the Saugerties Fish and Game team was third at 226. Smith, Phil Siggia and Paul Wirthmann all had .940.

The deadlocks continued as Van Wagner and Art Lapp scored .933 to tie for sixth. Bob Schmiedake was alone in eighth place with a .928, then Tom Benadini, Bob Sperl and Ed Whitaker all posted .920's to split ninth place. Sperl had a run of 25 straight.

sumes Sunday at the Saugerties Fish and Game range. The shoot starts at 11 a.m.

Angels Select First in Draft

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The California Angels will get first crack at the nation's pool of prized high school and college baseball prospects in the annual summer free agent draft Wednesday.

It's the first time the Angels have held the No. 1 selection since the draft was instituted in 1965.

Although the Angels aren't saying who they like, it's been reported that Southern University catcher Danny Goodwin will be their first selection.

"We will draft the best player available, regardless of position," said Angels' scouting director Walter Shannon. "We would prefer to select a college player close to major league ability."

All Bark, No Bite

Mick McGuinness (R) of Band, Oregon, demonstrates the meaning of the word "strain" as he grunts and groans his way to victory over Robert Coan of Falls Church, Va., in semi-finals of National Wristwrestling Championships held at the Grand Hotel in Las Vegas Saturday. McGuinness' facial expressions weren't quite enough to carry him through the day, however, as he later lost to eventual champion Dean Christensen of Portland, Ore. (UPI)

Soccer Win For Kingston

RHINEBECK Kingston and eekskill opened the Hudson Valley Soccer League season with victories Sunday. The Kingston club made a four-goal comeback to pin a 5-3 defeat on host Poughkeepsie while Peekskill wrestled a 3-1 decision from Rhinebeck here. Dave Farrell's penalty kick was all the Kingston club could muster in the first half as Poughkeepsie surged to a 3-1 lead at intermission A hat trick by Johnny Robinson and another score by Farrell in the second half pulled the winners into the lead.

Dave Oliver, Marshall Zimmerman and Bo Shickett booted the goals for Poughkeepsie. Pepe Femia struck in the first period to draw Rhinebeck into a 1-1 deadlock with its visitors, but the Peekskill defense yielded no more. Trevor James hit the go-ahead tally early in the second half, and the Peekskill booters padded the margin before the clock ran out.

NP vs. Rondout for UCAL Title

KINGSTON The two best baseball teams in the Ulster County Athletic League will meet at Marlboro Tuesday to decide this year's champion. Rondout Valley High, the Division II titlist with a 10-4 record, will defend its crown against New Paltz which took the Division III title with a 12-2 slate.

Rondout beat the Division I winner, Liberty, to advance to the finals while the Hugies topped wild card entry Pine Bush. Both teams are coming off a week's rest.

New Paltz coach Bill Freer is looking for a difficult test. "Rondout is very good. That's obvious or they wouldn't be here. They have a lot of kids back from last year, but so do we."

The Hugies will field a well balanced team behind either Roger Plantier, Mike Beck or Pete Ferrante. Freer was reluctant to name a starting pitcher too far in advance.

"Roger pitched well against them, but they hit him," he said. "Besides, there are other factors involved besides the pitchers."

The Ganders will likely go with ace Jeff Purcell with Jay Schaeffer, who shutout Liberty last week, available as a stopper. Rondout, however, relies on its hitting to win ball games. Purcell, Dave Schmeltz, Jeff Mahoney and Todd Buswell lead the potent attack.

New Paltz has not overpowered opponents this year, but its good balance has carried it past most opponents. Pete Sciascia at short, Tim Savano in the outfield and Rich Snider behind the plate anchor a tight defense, and at the plate five of the Hugies have at least ten RBI's.

Game time is 4 p.m.

Four-Horse Mishap at Mighty M

MONTICELLO Four-year-old Tipper Lobell zipped to the front at the quarter in a blazing :29.4 seconds and went on to score by a length over Laker and Gawain Hanover in 2:01 in Monticello's Open Handicap $8,000 pacing feature Sunday afternoon.

Bob Conti drove the toper to his second win of the season at te Mighty M, the fastest mile at the upstate New York oval this season. The mutual payoffs were $5.80, $4.80 and $3.40.

A spectacular mishap just past the half vaulted four drivers from their sulkies in the fifth race, decimating the field. Del Biccum appeared to have made the front and moved Rainbow Pride toward the rail when the second horse ran into him.

Tossed from their sulkies but appearing unhurt were Ralph Arone, Ronald Ingrassia, Sam Smith and Peter Verheyeweghen. Speedy Collins with Gary Dalton went on to win the race, paying $5.80.

Form held up in the 6-1 daily double with a slim $11.20 payoff. Snowball Express ($4.20) took the first. Judge Quinton paid $3.10 in the second.

The third race trifecta saw Cardigans Cushion lead home Gigolo N ans Sundancer. The 2-3-1 triple paid $82.50.

Prefontaine Services Today

COOS BAY, Ore. (UPI) — Memorial Services for Olympic runner Steve Prefontaine will be held today at the Marshfield High School Athletic Stadium, where he first came to national attention.

"That's where it all began, and that's where it will end," Pre's father said Sunday.

Jaako Tuominen, leader of a group of Finnish athletes recruited by Pre for a series of meets in the northwest, said the Finns probably would delay their departure to attend the funeral services. The Finns had competed Thursday night at Hayward Field in Eugene, where the former University of Oregon star ran the 5,000 meters in 13:23.8, just 1.6 seconds off his own national record.

Little League Terwilliger: No-Hitter

KINGSTON Dave Terwilliger fired a no-hit shutout in the Town of Ulster Little League as Dick's Arco Mets recorded a 3-0 victory over the Conti Explosive Indians.

Terwilliger gave up only two walks, both in the sixth inning, but fanned six in beating John Conti. He got some defensive support from Jay Levy who took a hit away from the Indians' Norm Goodwin in the fifth with a good catch of a line drive.

Levy also banged the only extra base hit of the contest, a double, and drove in Terwilliger with a score.

The pitchers were also smokin' in the Saugerties Little League. Anthony Beck of the K of C Giants flipped a no-hitter at the Saugerties Coal and Lumber Tigers, but he lost, 2-0 to a one-hit shutout by the Tigers' Chris Rea.

Gibson Demoted

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — The slumping St. Louis Cardinals have demoted Bob Gibson from the team's starting rotation in reaction to the veteran pitcher's 1-5 record.

Gibson, 39, who will retire at the end of this season, will serve as a backup starter, the Cardinals said Sunday.

The two-time National League Cy Young Award winner had made 303 successive appearances as a St. Louis starter since 1965.

Gibson termed the demotion "a mistake," but said he would not complain about it.

Manager Red Schoendienst said Gibson is "still a good pitcher but he's not pitching as great as he has in the past."

"It's a tough decision," Schoendienst said. "He likes the game so much and he's such a great competitor."

The 17-year veteran is the all-time National League strikeout leader with 3,089 strikeouts, behind only Walter Johnson. This year he has struck out 32 men in 65 2-3 innings.

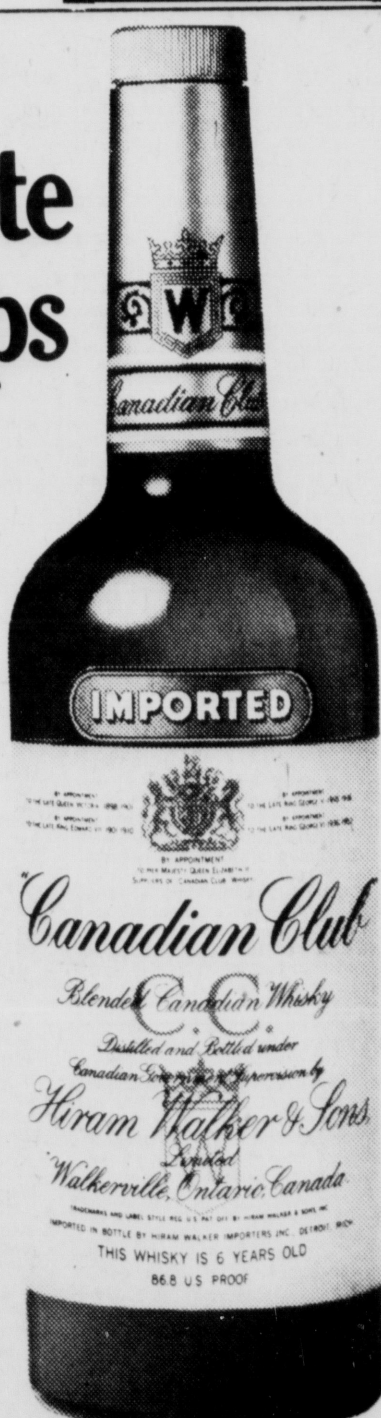

Gibson, with a 4.77 ERA this year, last pitched Friday night in a losing effort.

So, What's New? Weather Buffets British Amateur

HOYLAKE, England (UPI) — Texan John Grace battled his way through 40 mile-an-hour winds and icy rain Monday to win the opening match of the 80th British Amateur golf championship.

The 26-year-old Fort Worth real estate agent won each of the first four holes on the 6,979-yard, par-72 Royal Liverpool seaside course and went on to beat Englishman Peter Holt, six and four.

But it was the weather, not Holt, that gave Grace the most problems.

"I've never seen anything like it," he said. "It was just impossible to play in those conditions. Bogey was par out there this morning and I was happy to get it."

Temperatures in several parts of Britain reached the freezing point during the night and snow was reported in Scotland and Northern England. At Royal Liverpool the wind Monday morning flattened a refreshment stand near the first tee.

Grace was one of three dozen Americans in the 193-member field competing in the match-play tournament that ends with a 36-hole final Saturday.

British sportswriters favored an American to go home with the title for the 19th time. Last week the U.S. team romped to victory in the Walker Cup at St. Andrews and traditionally they have done well when they stay on for the British Amateur.

Neither Trevor Homer nor Jim Gabrielson who met in last year's final at Muirfield were among the starters this year. Homer, who won two-up, has turned pro and Gabrielson, 19, an American, did not enter.

Ed Updegraff, who captains the Walker Cup squad, was among the early American winners Monday. The Tucson, Ariz., physician beat H.J. Evans, five and four.

Walks Haunt Rougier

Pitching is the name of the game . . . sometimes even in Slo Pitch Softball. Joe Rougier found out the hard way Sunday by dishing out 11 walks in a C Division contest, and four of the runners came in to score as Polacco's topped Rougier's Delaware Deli team, 12-2.

In other divisional results, Rotron downed the Governor Clinton Cleaners, 13-7, and the Pier Seven Giants took a forfeit from the Pier Seven Reds.

Polacco's got only five hits in the game, just one more than the losers, but there were plenty of baserunners. Winning pitcher Charlie Boughton, who gave up only four hits, slammed a double and collected two RBI's. Jim Polacco also knocked in a pair for the winners.

Rotron scored eight runs in the first two innings and coasted to its victory. Frank Schofield drove in three runs, and Bob Hand, Roland Sagen-dorf and Bob Pirih each drove in two.

TO MY PATIENTS

The New York State Legislature has passed an inadequate medical Malpractice Bill. This bill was created by lawyers to give the public the impression that the Doctors' medical liability problems have been resolved. The law makers were very careful to delete most of the key elements suggested by the New York State Medical Society which would have contributed to reducing abuses of the present system.

On a long term view, I do not see how we, as community Doctors, can subject our patients to the constantly accelerating costs of this presently inadequate system. Therefore, effective June 30, 1975, if the current malpractice insurance problem is unresolved I will not be able to provide you with medical care and treatment.

Until a solution is reached in this matter, the Ulster County Medical Society, with the cooperation of other persons and agencies involved in health care delivery, will provide procedures to be followed by all individuals who need medical care. Further information on these procedures will be forthcoming through this office and through your local newspapers and radio stations.

Best Way to Lead Spades

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "Bridge Brilliance and Blunders" is the title that Dick Miller has given to a collection of hands he had written for the National Observer."Jim: "Here is one that illustrates a simple type of play.
South has to struggle at three notrump after a diamond lead by West. He can't duck as he would like to and he can't collect nine tricks unless he can establish a spade."Oswald: "The expert line of play is to play some clubs, probably ace, king and a small one to dummy's jack. Then expert South leads the deuce of spades from dummy."Jim: "This puts it right up to East. If he is up on his toes he will hop up with his ace, knock out South's second and last diamond stopper and smile contentedly when West eventually collects tricks with three diamonds and the king of spades."Oswald: "Dick doesn't tell us what actually happened.
He just points out that if South led a spade from his own hand he would almost surely have been set."

$128.4 Thousand Tax Bill

The eye-opening document being held by Army Spec. 4 Ralph Miller is a tax bill he received from the Internal Revenue Service for $128,494.33. The 25-year-old Miller, a physical security NCO at the Fliegerhorst Casern in Hanau, Germany, who earned $9,180 last year, said he was expecting a rebate and "just about died" when he saw the bill (UPI)

Crucial Week for NYC Hospitals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today was expected to be the first real test of the work slowdown by metropolitan area doctors in protest over the new state malpractice insurance laws.

The physicians' intention to phase out all non-emergency medical services seemed to have had little initial impact on patient care Sunday, according to a random UPI survey.

However, Sundays are usually slow days for hospitals and most doctors conceded it would be several days before the full effect of the action could be assessed.

While spokesmen for various medical societies in the five boroughs were not available for comment Sunday, a check of hospitals showed that most were operating normally.

Only Flushing Hospital in Queens and Brookdale Hospital in Brooklyn indicated they expected to handle less surgical cases today than usual. A Brookdale spokesman said cases were expected to be so far below normal that some 75 operating room personnel would be furloughed for the day.

At Mount Sinai Hospital in Manhattan, an administrator said Sunday, "We are expecting a full house today and tomorrow. If there is going to be a slowdown, it won't show up until tomorrow."

Christopher Wilbur, associate director at the Hospital for Special Surgery in Manhattan, said the hospital has a full operating schedule for today, an indication the slowdown will affect the hospital gradually.

"We may know more later in the week," Wilbur said, echoing the remarks of many other hospital administrators.

A woman at an emergency medical care answering service for doctors said the number of calls requesting physicians in Manhattan, Queens, Brooklyn and the Bronx was "pretty near the same as usual."

All county medical societies have stressed that arrangements have been made to handle emergency cases at municipal hospitals. Patients can obtain treatment either through physician referral or, in New York City and Nassau County, by dialing the "911" emergency number.

The new malpractice law, which establishes a pool of insurance companies to underwrite malpractice coverage for the state if none is available, has drawn mixed reaction from physicians since it was passed last month.

On May 24, the State Medical Society's House of Delegates, meeting in Lake Success, voted 143-82 to reject the law, previously approved unanimously by the society's own 23-member council. Opposition was greatest among doctors from Brooklyn, Queens and Long Island.

The protesting physicians are asking for a definition of medical malpractice and the creation of an impartial medical panel to advise juries in malpractice suits.

They also are asking for a limit on the amount of money awarded in malpractice cases, limited legal fees for attorneys involved and the creation of a study commission to review any new malpractice legislation.

Ex-Agent Links Mafia to CIA

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Three Mafia gangsters supplied information to the Central Intelligence Agency used to plan the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba in 1961, a former CIA agent has told the Sacramento Bee.

The Bee Sunday quoted the unidentified agent as saying that in return for the data the Mafia mobsters would have been allowed to recover money they left behind when Fidel Castro took control of the country and to reopen their Cuban casinos — if the invasion succeeded.

The former agent said Lawrence R. Houston, retired general counsel of the CIA, received the information from the three Mafia members and one of their associates through two CIA employees who were dealing with the organized crime figures.

Houston told the Bee, "I do not recollect such a thing, but that doesn't mean it didn't happen. I won't deny it, but I don't remember anything like that."

"My memory is not as good as some," he added. "When you reflect on it, it is not an implausible situation, is it?"

The three Mafia figures were named as Russell Butalino,

James Plumeri and Salvatore Granello. Granello and Plumeri were victims of separate, unrelated gangland executions several years ago. The 71-year-old Butalino is still actively in charge of his Pennsylvania Mafia family, the Bee said.

(The current issue of Time magazine said the three men controlled a race track and "a huge gambling casino when they were banished by Castro, leaving behind $450,000.")

The unidentified former CIA agent said in the last half of 1960 Butalino, the two members of the New York Mafia family and a fourth crime world figure began supplying the CIA with intelligence they ostensibly were receiving from inside Cuba.

Gas Going to 70 Cents a Gallon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ford administration energy proposals would push the price of regular gasoline up to nearly 70 cents a gallon, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb says.

"Our program has been one which would increase all of the products from the crude barrel," Zarb said Sunday, "...with gasoline going up perhaps 14 or 15 cents" and other products six to eight cents.

He agreed with a television interviewer (ABC's "Issues and Answers") that the increase caused by decontrolling prices and raising taxes would push the average price of a gallon up from the current 53- or 54-cent level to almost 70 cents.

"That is correct," said Zarb. "But keep in mind these conservation taxes which we had proposed would be returned to the economy. And individuals, particularly those who could least afford to pay higher energy costs, would be given more back than their actual increases would be..."

A big energy tax bill awaited House Rules Committee action today. The measure, in response to Ford's criticism of legislative delays on energy proposals, will come up on the House floor June 9 if cleared by the panel.

A Library of Congress study, meanwhile, predicted the President's energy program would cost American consumers an extra $36.4 billion a year.

The study, released Saturday by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., said the largest increase — $15.7 billion — would come from decontrolling the price of domestic oil. Ford's addition of a $1 tariff per barrel on imported oil will cost the consumer another $12.1 billion, the study said. Unregulated interstate natural gas prices would go up $3.8 billion and the price of coal would jump $4.8 billion each year.

Zarb was asked Sunday about preparation of a standby gas rationing plan.

He said the FEA thinks "the likelihood of another (foreign oil) embargo is very high" and the nation should be prepared for such an emergency.

Zarb said details of the rationing plan have not yet been approved. It would take about 90 days for it to be fully operational if there were another major oil embargo.

"A decision would be dependent upon the size, shape and scope of such an embargo," Zarb said, as well as other factors. "It (rationing) certainly will be looked at as one of the first possibilities and, of course, the President will make the final decision."

Congress Back to Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is back from its 10-day Memorial Day vacation today and faces issues such as unemployment, energy, civil rights, post-Vietnam foreign policy and some veto fights.

The House starts work today on whether to extend the Voting Rights Act. Some Republicans and Southern Democrats want to limit any extension to five years, rather than the 10 years provided in a pending bill.

The Senate today begins what could be a major debate on the shape of U.S. foreign and military policies following the loss of Indochina to the Communists. The vehicle for the debate is a $30.3 billion authorization bill for weapons procurement.

A big energy tax bill goes before the Rules Committee later today. If cleared by that panel the measure will come up on the House floor on June 9.

Democratic leaders tentatively scheduled a vote in the House Wednesday on whether to override President Ford's veto last week of a $5.3 billion bill to provide 1.5 million jobs for the unemployed. Ford said the bill was not an effective way to attack unemployment and would add to inflation.

Congress also soon will consider whether to override Ford's veto of a bill to control strip mining, which he said would reduce coal production during a time of energy need.

There may be still another veto fight over a bill temporarily barring Ford from imposing tariffs on oil imports. Ford is imposing his second $1 tariff increase June 1.
